

Arpeggiating With a Backing Track

By Christopher Schlegel

Ready to try the arpeggiated version with the backing track?

Click on the audio file at the bottom of this page. And listen for the six hi-hat clicks that count in the song. Start picking the A minor chord right after the hi-hat count in. Change each chord at the beginning of each measure and you are on your way.

If you have trouble keeping up with the backing track, then turn it off! As I said before, don't torture yourself. Take some time to practice the physical motions of changing chords a bit longer. Try again with the metronome at slower speeds. When you've practiced a bit longer, then give it try.

Be patient with yourself and remember this is supposed to be fun!

Happy playing!
